Now that I've done some research on flushing cat litter (please see post #1 and post #2 regarding this controversial topic) I can safely say that if you have taken the necessary precautions and considered the pros and cons of toilet training your cat, then there are some terrific resources out there to help you with the challenge.

For one, check out this adorable new book Kick Litter by Perre DiCarlo. It is the story of his two "litter addicts" Moxie and Cooper and how they got over their addiction to the sandy stuff and now prefer porcelain.

With some very hip graphics from San Francisco-based design firm Chen Design Associates, this little book would make a great gift for anyone considering making the change.

The author is an award winning Hollywood web designer and a great cat dad. He has created two hysterical blogs, Miss Litter (Moxie's) and Dig Litter (Cooper's), where his two fabulous felines blog about their experience with toilet training, complete with tons of videos and photos.

BONUS GIVEAWAY!

As the final giveaway for Litter Week, one lucky person will get a special advance copy of Kick Litter. Please leave a comment on this post telling us about your experiences with toilet training or why you think your cat would take to it. I'll give you a few extra days so you have until next Friday, November 21 to enter. The winner will be chosen in a random drawing and announced next week.

I'm getting a new cat after the holidays, it would be awesome to be litter-free.

How cute a book about the cold grip that litter takes on our kitties!
